Background:

Luna is one of the two sole survivors of the destruction of Earth. Traumatized by the event, Luna's feelings are buried under a thick layer of massive concrete. The fate of her home planet made her bitter, manipulative, and opportunistic. As far as Luna is concerned, humanity is dead, and buried as deeply as her feelings.

Loyal to no one, Luna leads the life of a roaming spy. It's how she survives. Luna lavishes herself in Sunstorm's love, but she knows one day she'll betray him in the worst possible way.

However, she's not totally heartless, and Sunstorm does crack her tough shell. The question is: will she allow herself to be loved, after all the bad things she's done? Is she really worthy of the second chance Sunstorm is offering her?
